In most situations, you don't have to unistall the software and just follow the steps below. Select Programs, and click Uninstall application. Follow the standard uninstall procedure. As you can see we can install older versions of these applications by choosing a different download location. However, when it comes to cracking software we have to use the older version that the release is based on. As described in an earlier article, the Mac version of PaintCode has been updated to version 3.4 which can be downloaded from the PaintCode web site. Applications created in PaintCode 2.1.3 have always shared the same name space used by PaintCode 2.3 versions. The PaintCode 3.4 installer adds a new document type "PaintCode Sketch" to the DocType Library. A file extension for this type of document is.sketch. The PaintCode 3.4 installer will attempt to convert existing 2.1.3 files to the new.sketch format as soon as they are edited. This can be used to open files created with PaintCode 2.1.3 in PaintCode 3.4. The PainCode 3.4 installer also copies old version files to the new Documents folder. This procedure does not affect existing PaintCode 2.3 files unless they have been modified
